

AIA Exam Prep

Gausman & Moore is proud to dedicate resources to the American Institute of Architecture (AIA) in preparing architects for the Architectural Registration Exam (ARE). Part of the curriculum for earning AIA licensure is several hours of instruction related to building systems. Each year two of our Partners teach a portion of the Building Systems engineering and design segment of the exam study course. Jim Manning, P.E., teaches the Mechanical Engineering course and Dave Blume, P.E., teaches the Electrical Engineering course.

We know that interdisciplinary design and construction teams are better aligned and work best together when they understand and appreciate the concepts involved in each other's work. We are committed to the AIA and enjoy working with their members every chance we get.
